DEFINITE SHAPE.

The Movement for Free Turnpikes Now Under Way.

fore the Fall Election.

The movement to secure free turnpikes is beginning to assume definite shape. At a second meet-ing held Tuesday night a commit-tee was selected to begin the actual work of soliciting money for inci-dental expenses and to secure names to a formal petition for a vote

The law requires 15 per cent. of the votes cast at the general elec-tion. The election in 1898 was the last and the total vote was only 3335. According to this only 500 votes must be secured to the peti-votes must be secured to the peti-tion and these can be secured in one day in this city alone.

The committee is composed of M. C. Forbes, chairman; E. B. Bas-sett, O. H. Anderson, R. E. Cooper, J. P. Prowse, J. A. Boyd

The plan is to issue bonds enough to buy the existing turnpikes, about 60 miles, and also to build a new free pike to the coal mines in North Christian.

The need of free pikes and the great advantage they would give to Hopkinsville are admitted by all. There is a hardly a doubt that the proposition would carry if submitted to a vote.

TWO GAMES TO-DAY.

BRYAN'S TOUR.

State For Goebel.

cludes Hopkinsville

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 8.—The Democrats around campaign head-quarters here were pleased to note the second declaration of Mr. Bryan at Chicago that he was certainly coming to Kentucky to campaign for the Democratic State ticket this fall, though they knew that he had already personally stated to Na-tional Committeeman Woodson and tional Committeeman Woodson and to Mr. Goebel that he would come without fail during the month of September. The date of his coming will be arranged by Mr. Woodson to suit the national silver leader.

The latest information received at headquarters is that Mr. Bryan will spend at least ten days in Kentucky and the Campaign Committee is already preparing for his recep-tion into the State and for a flying trip over it in a special train.

Mr. Bryan will be met by a Reception Committee composed of leading Democrats at Louisville on his arrival and the special will probably male that she she was the state of the bly make that place the starting point, touching at all the principal towns in the State and as many of the smaller ones as possible. He will be accompanied on the trip by Senator Blackburn, all of the nomi nees on the State ticket and those members of the Campaign Committee whose duties do not require their presence elsewhere. Democratic leaders from other States who happen to be here campaigning will also be aboard the special.

The visit of Mr. Bryan to the State is to be the event of the campaign and much good is expected to result from it.

Mr. Goebel.

Since his return from Peru, to which country he was minister until three years ago, Hon. James A. McKenzie has been living on his farm at Oak Grove in this county. His health has never been entirely since almost wrecked in the climate of South America. He has not been active in politics, but still takes a lively interest in the issues of the day. Feeling that the opinion of so dis-tinguished a citizen would be read with interest at this time, The KENTUCKIAN addressed Mr. McKenzie a letter asking him to state what his position is in politics this year. In reply the following statement was received from him yesterday.

"In answer to your letter of inquiry I have this to say: I shall support the Democratic ticket nominated at the Louisville convention

inated at the Louisville convention from top to bottom.

I regard Mr. Goebel as not only a very able man, but a wise and strong leader, who possesses the qualities necessary to make an excellent Governor. He is just the kind of man needed to deal with the feudists in Clay and other counties feudists in Clay and other counties tendists in Clay and other counties at the present time.

In my opinion his nomination was obtained just as fairly as the result would have been reached had either of his opponents been chosen The convention was as regular and fair as ordinary conventions. I re-peat that I shall support the regu-lar Democratic ticket from end to end.

This endorsement coming from a statesman of Mr. McKenzie's standing and prominence will have a far reaching effect in Western Kentucky. He served several terms in congress, was minister to Peru un-der Cleveland and has held many positions of honor, and history will assign him a place among the most assign him a place among the most pleasing orators of his time. He is the uncle of his namesake, young McKenzie Moss, the misguided young lawyer of Bowling Green who has wrecked a bright future by bolting the ticket of his party.

There is no uncertain sound in the language he utters. The endorse ment he gives the ticket is full and complete. Those who have fol-lowed his leadership in the past and who still love and honor him, will follow him this year in the fight to redeem Kentucky

A MINE OF CRYSTALS.

ying Man Tells a Valuable Secret to a

Stee balls turned from quartz crystals have obtained a considerable amount of popularity, chiefly for decorative purposes, a new mining field has been opened up for those who have sufficient confidence in the permanence of the present fancy. Thus far, says the New York Tribunc, the large and sinest balls have come from Japan, one notable specimen being now in the possession of Miss Helen Gould. It is about 73 inches in diameter, and, together with its gold and silver mountings, is said to have cost Miss Gould $15,000. But within the last year several tons of valuable crystals have been produced in this country, and it is hoped that from some of these masses, or from others still waiting to be excavated in the same neighborhood, balls may be turned which will equal the foreign ones in size and beauty. This immense deposit of quartz crystals is being worked by a Milwaukee mining expert, John E. Burton, and the story of how he came to undertake the project reads somewhat like the Capt. Kidd tales of cawe of burned treasure. "Several years ago," said Mr. Burton, who has just spent a couple of weeks in this city, "a friend of mine, a minembelgist, who was very ill and believed he could not recover, told me a secret which he had long guarded carefully. Although his story sounded much like many other improbable yarns of the kind, I was somewhat impressed wift the idea that it was true. Briefly, it was that in an cold cave, the exact location of which he described carefully, in the Sierra Newda mountains in Calaveras county, Cal., there were tons upon tons of pure quartz crystals, many of them of huge size. He gave me the name of the owner of the property in which the cave was—Capt. Jack McSorley, of Mokelume hill —urging me to believe what he told me and to investigate the contents of the wonderful cave. After spending they month in studying the subject of quartz crystals and in making inquires regarding the denand for hem and their market value, I decided to try to discover the deposit. ADVICE TO A GRADUATE.

First Published Years Ago, But Just as Good as Ever.

Remember, son, that the world is older than you are by several years; that for thousands of years it has been so full of men smarter and better younger men than yourself that their feet stuck out of the dornner windows; that when they died the old globe went wagging on, and not one man in 10,000,000 went to the funeral or even heard of the dath.

the young man made any. Not more than two or three, anyhow. The world has great need of young men, but no greater need than the young men have of it. Your clothes fit you better than your father's fit him; they cost more money, they are more stylish, your mustache is neater, the cut of your hair is better, and you are prettier, O, far prettier than "pa." Buying a Manila Girl.

Buying a Manila Girl.

On one of his trips from San Francisco to Manila, Frank Bucklin, of the United States steamer Warren, saw and admired a beautiful Manila child, about ten years of age. Speaking of her to a friend, he said: "Don't you think that would be a nice present to take home to my wife—a regular little Filipino? My wife can bring her up for a lady's maid."

"Why don't you buy her then," said the friend.

"Good idea," said Bucklin, and he forthwith offered the mother a dollar for the child.

The Manila mamma handed over the girl with one hand and grabbed the dollar with the other. Mr. Buck-lin took the wild young thing back with him, but she hit, fought, scratched and kicked until his life became a burden. Every day boatloads of Manila mammas came along-side the Warren offering tender girls for sale to the fat man. He refused 100 girls the first day, and finally, to escape the consequences of his rash act, he gave the little Manila girl back to her mother, together with a bonus of two dollars. This only increased the desire on the part of the Filipinos to sell their children, and Bucklin was the happiest man on board ship when she weighed anchor and left Manila harbor. The Manila mamma handed dve Manila harbor

Dog And Peafowl Fight.

An exciting encounter took place yesterday afternoon in the court-house yard. Jailer Miller has a "yaller" dog and peafowl, and the two are not the best of friends. The two are not the best of friends. The dog was given a plate of bones, and the peafowl attempted to frighten him away, but the canine held his own for about half an hour, but managed to do little eating. Finally the fowl sailed in and gave the dog a good whipping running him entirely out of the yard. The fowl then leisurely picked his choice from the morsels intended for the animal.

DEATH OF BIG FOOT

dian Story of Early Times In Convict Father for the First Tim

The Little Cock, Mrk., Oasener reports an interesting conversation with "Grandma" Finnell, who re-sides with her daughter, Mrs. Jno. M. Bracy in that city. She is over 90 years of age and not a grey hair in her bead, and can thread a fine in her head, and can thread a fine needle without glasses. In the con-versation she told the story of how her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Capt. Gano, killed the Indian Chief, Big Foot, and successfully defended her cabin all night against the In-dians, thereby saving her own life, and the lives of her two little children.

Grandma Gano was the first set Grandma Gano was the first settler at the big spring in what is now Georgetown, Scott county, Ky. One day Grandfather Gano, who had been a captian in the regular army under Gen. Ethan Allen, had to go back to the settlements after supplies. He left his wife and two little children in their log cabin. He had loaded and left with his wife foar guns, as the woods were full of wild beasts and wild Indians and the nearest settlement was ten and the nearest settlement was ten miles away and their nearest neigh-bor was six miles away. He cau-tioned his wife to stay with the two children inside of the cabin and keep the door barred until he re-turned the next day, as there was great danger of Indians or wild beasts, at any hour during the day ocasis, at any nour during the day or night. All day she kept watch, but saw nothing to alarm her until about dusk, when she discovered the skulking form of an Indian dart from behind one tree to the shelte of another tree, approaching the house. She at once lifted the trap door in the middle of the room and put her two children down into a little kind of a ceilar made for the little kind of a ceilar made for the purpose, gave them a pan of bread and mlk, told them the Indians were coming and not to make the least bit of noise. She shut down the trap door, and saw that the door was double burred, picked up a rifle and waited. Darkness came on but she never Darkness came on but she never for a moment relaxed her vigilance, Soon she heard a step approaching the door. Some one knocked and a gruff voice said: "Open door, me captain's friend." The brave woman made no answer, but peep-ing through the loopholes that were made in all the cabins of the piomade in all the cabins of the pio made in all the cabins of the pio-neers to shoot through, she saw in the starlight the forms of six In-dians around her door. The chief, standing nearest the door, again spoke. "Open door, white woman, me captan's friend, me come talk." Still no answer. He struck the door a fiecce blow with his hatchet, saving: "We know captain gone.

saying; "Me know captain gone.
Open door or me burn house." Still no answer, but peeping through the portholes she saw the Indians striking fire with their flints and steel and she realized the horrible fat in store for her and her little child-ren. Putting her rifle to the port-hole she took quick aim at the chief, pulled the trigger and sent a bul-let crashing through his breast. He fell without a groan, and the other Indians ran back and got behind the trees, from whence they kept up a desultory firing all night, the brave woman answering them shot for shot. At daylight the them shot for shot. At daylight the Indians disappeared, and soon thereafter Capt. Gano rode up. They discovered that the Indian that Grandma Gano had killed was the famous "Big Foot," the greatest fighter among all the Indians in Kentucky. They buried the great chief on the top of the bluff near the spring and when Grandma Finnell was a child they used to some be-

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 9.—Secretary Haly, of the Democratic Campaign Committee, has received a letter from former Senator Jo Blackburn announcing his complete re-storation to health, and that he had prepared himself for the opening of the campaign at Mayfield on next Saturday with nominee Goebel. He also said he would be in Frankfort to-morrow, en route to Western Ken-tucky, and that he would join Senator Goebel here.

Pledged to King Solomon.

The Lexington bolters' conference was presided over by H. B. Kinsolving, of Montgomery. This calls to mind a story told of old Uncle Joe Read, once State Senator, candidate for Lieutenant Governor, and later doorkeeper of the Senate gentleman approaching Uncle e and asked him if he didn't think Bill Sweeney was the biggest fool in the State. Uncle Joe was essentially a trimmer, and he replied cautiously: "Well. I don't know, I'm pledged to that fellow Kinsolv-ing."--Paducah News.

Struggle with a Cougar.

In company with an Indian a Port Arthur (Wash.) man went fishing for salmon in a rocky river. Suddenly a big cougar appeared at the entrance to a cave, and with a roar crouched to spring at the Indian. The white man threw his fals pear at the cougar, while the Indian ran for his life. The spear entered the animal's neck and ear, and was "Big Foot," the greatest fighter among all the Indians in Kentucky. They buried the greatchief on the top of the bluff near the spring and when Grandma Finnell was a child they used to scare her by telling her that "Big Foot" would come out of his grave every night at midnight and go down to the spring and groan and moan as if in great agony. So strong was this belief among the children there that they would not go to the spring alone after dark. In fact, even the grown people were not entirely free from this superstition.

THE PARTIALLY MUSICAL. Vant to Sit in a Comfortable Seat and Hear Tunes.

Went to Sit in a Comfortable Seat and Hear Tunes.

There are multitudes of them in London. They go about uttering the passionate ry: "Give us a tune!" Their desire for a tune might well move a dimnished seventh to tears or cause the stoutest-augmented fourth to quail and respect the triad, says the London World. It is no manner of use telling them that there are tunes in the operas of Wagner, that the "Meistersunger" streams with tunes, that "Fristam" is full of melody, that the woodbird music in "Die Walkure" is magically tuneful, that the overture to "Taunhauser" and the third act of "Lobengrin" contain airs that turn us into mandarins. the overture to "Tamhauser" and the third act of "Lobengrin" contain airs that turn as into mandarins. They reply that they want tunes that are tunes. Never argue with them. It is useless and leads to discords, and they prefer discords, though very often they could not tell you the difference between one and the other. These partially musical people, who swarm like bees in the busy streets of London, like something tripping. When a violinist suddenly plays pizzicato they suddenly think him an extraordinary violinist. When a player by some trick makes his instrument sound like something that it is not —for instance, when a violinist produces a tone like a harp by playing a natural harmonic note pizzicato, or a bassoon player produces a sound like an alderman asleep aker a eity hall dinner by means that need not be described—they are enthusiastically delighted, and hastily acknowledge music to be the greatest of the arts. They dread a fugue more than pestilence, a piece of strict counterpoint more than famine. Talk not to them of subject and countersubject, of sequences and modulations, of exposition—which and countersubject, of sequences and modulations, of exposition—which they connect with Paris and the next century—and of inversion. They cannot dissect music, nor do they desire to. They decline to use their intellect in connection with a gay art—as they consider it. What they want is to sit in a comfortable seat and hear tunes. Yet they are partially musical and they have every right to be considered. Also, they can be gently educated, if you don't let them know it, just as children can swallow pills if they don't know they are swallowing pills, but are totally unable to get them down if they do.

You have all flown kites in the day-time, but have you ever done so at night? Many very pretty and very weird effects can be obtained by this night kite flying. For instance, you can take an ordinary kite, and upon it, with brush dipped in phosphorus, trace a face. When the kite is high up in air, there grimning down upon you, will be a face of fire. Or you can trace a circle upon the neare, over it. trace a face. When the kite is high up in air, there grinning down upon you, will be a face of fire. Or you can trace a circle upon the paper, cover it with the phosphorus, and then you will have far up in the air a pale yellow globe bearing a very strong resemblance to another moon. In using the phosphorus, however, be very careful, as it is a chemical. If you fly the new box kites a very pretty effect can be obtained by hanging
a little Chinese lantern to each corner and also along the string with which you hold it. As the box kite is very steady there is commeratively little teady, there is comparatively steady, there is comparatively fittle danger of your lanterns being blown out, and the appearance of these many twinkling colored lights high up in the air is very beautiful.—N. Y. Herald.

In connection with the practice of stamp-licking, a medical contempo-rary says: What layman would sus-pect that the unassuming postage rary says: What layman would suspect that the unassuming postage stamp could become an active vehicle for the spread of deadly ailments? Yet so it is, and the name of "stamp-lickers' tongue" has recently been brought to our notice by two distinguished medical men. It is known to the few that the common postage stamp owes its adhesiveness to the scrum of the horse. It follows that the film drawn from such a source serum of the horse. It follows that the film drawn from such a source may, or even must, at times be charged with microbes of a more or less hurtful nature. If a man licked a large number of stamps daily over a sufficiently long period of time the chances are he would set up cancer of that much-abused member. The danger has long ago heen recognized by the postal authorities of this country, who have placed dampers on the counters of the post office.

The striking and important events of the last year have established the overwhelming value of The Tratce A-Week Woald to every reader. For an almost nominal sum it has kept its subscribers informed of the progress of all our wars and, moreover, has reported them as promptly and fully as if it were a daily. With our interests still extending throughout the stending throughout the Philippines, and the great Tresidential examples, too, at hand, its value is further increased.

The motto of the Trace A-Week Woald is improvement. It strives each year to be better than it was the year before, and the public confidence in it is shown by the fact that it now circulates more than twice as many papers every week as any other newspaper, not a daily, published in A-We offer this unequaled newspaper and the Kentuckian together one year for $2.00.
